Siri seems to know more about this as far as the high costs of research and I like her idea of charging more to countries who can afford it, but would it work just like progressive taxes don't?